“Does Cooperation with Neighboring Countries Matter? The Dynamics of External Relations and Approval Ratings in Japan and South Korea”

In this project, I examine the effects of cooperation/conflict with neighboring countries on approval ratings in Japan and South Korea. Net cooperation scores are calculated using the Goldstein scale from the TERRIER event data.

“Formation and Termination of Rivalries”

In this paper, I focus on the formation and termination of rivalries considering the dynamics of rivalry networks. I employ the Temporal Exponential Random Graph Models (TERGMs) and the Separable Temporal Exponential Random Graph Models (STERGMs) to capture the network dynamics.
